Dear Allergan Shareholders,

As Allergan's 2019 Annual Meeting of Shareholders is fast approaching, we wanted to reiterate the importance of your vote on this year's proposals. Your Board of Directors strongly recommends that you vote FOR all of the Company's proposals (1-5), and AGAINST a shareholder proposal (6) calling for the immediate separation of Chairman and CEO roles, which we believe is not aligned with the best interests of our long-term shareholders for the following reasons:

1. We have already adopted an Independent Chair policy. The policy will be phased in no later than the next leadership transition. This follows best practice, is how the vast majority of Independent Chair proposals are implemented and is aligned with the views of both leading independent proxy advisors, Institutional Shareholder Services (ISS) and Glass Lewis, who have recommended that shareholders vote AGAINST shareholder proposal 6.

ISS: "The board has already been responsive to the request of the prior year's proposal by adopting an independent chair policy to be phased in at the next leadership transition [...] there are no significant concerns regarding the board's current leadership structure sufficient to suggest that an immediate split of the CEO and chairman roles is warranted at this time rather than at the next CEO transition. As such support for this proposal is not warranted at this time."

Glass Lewis: "We are not convinced that adoption of this proposal is necessary at this time, given the board's stated intention to phase in an independent director as chair at the time of the next CEO transition [...] we do not believe that adoption of this proposal would affect any meaningful change in the Company's leadership structure following the next CEO transition. Thus, we do not believe support for this measure is warranted at this time."

2. An immediate leadership change has no clear benefit in light of Allergan's existing rigorous independent oversight. Allergan has a robust Lead Independent Director role that already includes most of the responsibilities of the Chair and ensures rigorous independent oversight, and is held by Chris Coughlin, who received National Association of Corporate Directors' (NACD) Director of the Year Award in 2015. An immediate split of the Chair and CEO would not meaningfully change the existing level of independent oversight. The Lead Independent Director role is supported by a refreshed and engaged Board, with six new independent directors having joined in the last two years, including Bob Hugin, the former CEO of Celgene.
3. An immediate leadership change undermines our leadership, creates a crisis of confidence among Allergan's stakeholders who are key to Allergan's success, and entails significant, near term downside risk in contrast to any possible upside. Brent Saunders, with the oversight of the Board of Directors, has been leading the strategic transformation of Allergan from a generics company to a global biopharmaceutical leader. We are at a critical juncture with key pipeline milestones and new product launches approaching, and as we manage the headwinds from products facing loss of exclusivity (LOE) and competitive pressures on our flagship product, it is important that our customers, partners and employees know the Board stands behind his leadership.
4. The Board considers its leadership structure, including the CEO and Chair roles, annually. The Board has the authority to make a change at any time and will do so when and if warranted.
5. The Allergan Board is committed to holding management accountable, as evidenced by the Company's executive compensation program which reflects unambiguous alignment with shareholders and pay-for-performance. The significant majority (greater than 75%) of CEO pay is tied to equity and is long-term oriented while 93% of his total pay opportunity is variable or "at-risk." Our incentive structure is rigorously performance based. In fact, the Company's stock price performance has resulted in well below-target long-term award payouts to executives for both 2018 and 2017. Mr. Saunders realized only about 20% of target values for recent long-term awards completed as of 2018, and the multi-year equity awarded in 2017 was worth less than half of that amount at the end of 2018. Despite achievement of the Company's operational and strategic objectives as set by the Board's Compensation Committee in the beginning of year, the Board exercised negative discretion that reduced the CEO's 2018 bonus payout by more than half. Further demonstrating strong alignment with long-term shareholders, our CEO has a large share ownership stake, a substantial portion of which was self-funded.
6. Our entire Board is committed to ongoing engagement with our shareholders, and highly responsive to your feedback. We have demonstrated our commitment in our recent engagements with many of you, and with the actions we have taken in response to shareholder feedback. Some of these recent actions include expanding responsibilities for our Lead Independent Director and forming a Mergers & Acquisitions Committee that will review proposed transactions. We assure you that our long-term shareholders' voices will be heard with this Board.

7. Importantly, the Board is acting with urgency and prepared to take all necessary actions to maximize value for our company and shareholders.

We remain open and committed to considering any practical options to create shareholder value and regularly reassess the assumptions underlying our strategy.

As such, we urge all shareholders to vote AGAINST the shareholder proposal 6.

As always, we remain steadfast in our commitment to ensuring best-in-class governance, and doing what's in the best interest of our shareholders.

We thank you for your support, and we look forward to maintaining an open dialogue with you.

Allergan Board of Directors
